STUDENTS' STUPENDOUS HOMECOMING PROPOSALS

Homecoming 2017 is upon us, and students have been asking one another to go right and left. Many people began asking very early in the year, however, others waited to figure out just the right way to ask their date.

Reese Glynn, who is a sophomore, asked Grace Lewis, another sophomore, to homecoming on September 26. He surprised her at her house with roses and a sign that read, "Please don't let my heart deflate, will you be my HOCO date?"

He said, "The best part of surprising Grace was when she walked in and yelled 'YES' immediately after she saw me. She didn't even read the sign until after we took pictures"

This seems to be the most common experience among students when they ask their dates. Once the girl or guy sees the sign, they immediately say yes without even reading the sign.

Dion Sanders and Julia Lewis, who are juniors, are going together as well. Dion asked Julia on October 6 after the Woodlands Christian football game. He gave her a plush teddy bear and a bright blue sign that said, "I couldn't bear HOCO without you," in colorful bubble letters and lights around the edge.

Julia explained, "I'm excited about going to homecoming this year! I'm going with a great group and I think it will be a lot of fun!"

The students are pumped up for homecoming this year. Seeing the creative ways people ask their dates always makes the students more eager for the night of the dance. We can't wait to see all of the wonderful students dressed up and having fun with their peers on homecoming night!

A Message from Mrs. May

Your God-Sized Calling

Unless you live in a bubble, you've surely noticed the state of our world. America is divided. Right is wrong and wrong is right. Traditional values are viewed as old fashioned and common sense is not common at all. As parents, the task of raising Christ-centered children is an uphill battle. We are swimming against the culture as we navigate the secular current that seems to get stronger with each passing day. How can we prepare our children for what they will surely face? I believe we must deliver one very important message to our kids, with two extremely powerful points. We must make our children keenly aware of the power they have in Christ. Through this power, our children should understand that because they were designed to fulfill a God-sized purpose, they can make a God-sized impact on this world. Second, because they have a God-sized purpose, they should have a God-sized dream.

We know scripture tells us God has a plan for our life. Jeremiah 29:11 says, "For I know the plans I have for you.." If we believe this, we can surely see that God has placed a desire in our hearts. Motivational speakers will tell us we should, "follow our passion," or "do what we love." This sounds great, but I think we should encourage our children to take a different approach. The purpose God has placed in their hearts is a CALLING. That's different

Character Trait of the Month - October

Agreeableness

By Kristie Pope-Dunn: Dean of Family Ministry

Agreeableness is defined as: to one's liking, pleasing, willing or ready to agree or consent, suitable, accommodating, gracious, amiable, compatible, and harmonious. Our Bible verse for the month of October is found in Romans 12:18, "As far as it depends on you, live at peace with everyone." God asks of us in this chapter that we live differently than the world we live in. He instructs us to be not conformed to this world, but to be transformed by the renewing of our minds. Where and how do we do that? How do we live agreeably with enemies on every side and enemy schemes lurking around every corner, ad, and social media post? He tells us to renew our minds. Renew – to restore to a former state or make new as if new again. Husbands are called to wash their wives' mind with the Word. If that's where God calls us to go for mental health, we must spend time reading His Word. It will literally guide our paths, behaviors, and minds. In this twelfth chapter alone, we are instructed to: offer true and proper worship, transform our minds so we may be able to test and approve what God's will is, think of ourselves with sober judgement, prophesy if your gift is prophesy, serve if your gift is serving, teach if your gift is teaching, encourage if your gift is encouragement, give if your gift is giving, lead diligently if your gift is leading, and show mercy cheerfully if your gift is showing mercy, honor one another above ourselves, keep our spiritual fervor, be joyful in hope, patient in affliction, and faithful in prayer. He also gives us permission to hate what is evil and instructs us to cling to what is good (what a visual!). Here's how God asks us to love and honor one another: share with the Lord's people who are in need, practice hospitality, bless those who persecute you, rejoice with those who rejoice, mourn with those who mourn, live in harmony with one another, be willing to associate with people of low position, be humble, be careful to do what is right in the eyes of everyone, and if it is possible, as far as it depends on you, live at peace with everyone! Wow. This is a very meaty chapter, and it's only one!

Father, thank You for Your Holy Word that leads us, humbles us, instructs us, and molds us to live our lives as pleasing unto You. May we choose daily to live agreeably with one another, respecting each other as parts of Your one Body of believers. Open our eyes to see each other how You see us, and Holy Spirit continue to speak to our hearts. Give us a desire to love as You do and wisdom to make right choices and live peaceably with everyone, as far as it concerns us. We bless Your holy Name, for You are worthy of our all.

LPCA exists to cultivate parental involvement in the educational process of their children, to instill students with a biblical worldview and the passion to stand firm and articulate boldly in defense of their faith, to prepare them for the rigors of college to guide them into independent learning, and to train our students to always give themselves fully to the work of the Lord, because their labor will not be in vain. than passion. A calling is the purpose placed in us by God that brings us closer to Him. It is embedded so deeply within us that everything we do is accomplished with a special devotion and direction. When we live out our calling, we are ultimately serving God. When we find our calling, God will give us the passion we need to fulfill it. Our calling is what we were born to do. God intends for us to accomplish things that no one else has because no one else has our specific calling! He wants us to leave a mark, and put a dent in this world! Make an impact! Our children should know their potential is unlimited because their God is unlimited. Teach your children to find their calling, and the passion to accomplish it will surely follow.

Mark Batterson's book, "Chase the Lion," dares us to be scared. He asks, "Does your dream scare you?" Since we know God has placed a purpose in our lives, we also know that the dreams placed there are big! They're probably so big that only God can accomplish them. So big, in fact, it should scare us! There's a little known story in the Bible of a man named, Benaiah. Benaiah knew he was being hunted by a man-eating lion, and instead of running, chased the lion into a pit — and then killed it. For most people, this wouldn't just be a problem...it would be the last problem they ever faced. But for Benaiah, it was an opportunity to step into his destiny. After defeating the lion, he became the body guard of King David and eventually, the commander-in-chief of Israel's army under King Solomon. He literally chased the lion and it changed his life forever. This is a radically different approach to life that encourages us to stop fearing failure so we can fully seize opportunity and blessing. As Mark writes, "This is a wake-up call to stop living as if the purpose of life is to simply arrive safely at death." Our dreams should scare us. They should be so big that without God they would be impossible to achieve. A God-sized dream will always be beyond our own ability or resources. In other words, unless God does it, it cannot be done! We should teach our children that their purpose is bigger than their fears, and that is God placed a desire in their hearts, He intends to fulfill it. Trust God to conquer those lions and to lead us to our purpose through our calling. When we risk failure because we're chasing the lion, the reward is huge and so is the impact!

So, how do we inspire our children to make an impact in this world? We encourage them to follow their calling, and chase their dreams. Set their hearts on making an impact for the Kingdom of God, and He will use their passion to change the world and conquer fears, one battle at a time. The world desperately needs our Jesus. Let's teach our children to carry his love beyond what we can't know or understand, and face their fears knowing God has already won the battle and defeated the enemy. And one victory at a time, we can show the world the love of Jesus. To God be the glory!

Leadership Teacher Feature : Nick Jones

Written by Paityn Smith

Legacy aims to disciple their students. Pastor Nick Jones is a great teacher and loves teaching students about Jesus. He teaches sixth-grade leadership every Friday. In sixth grade leadership, they are doing an overview of the Old Testament with an emphasis on God's character, grace, and faith. Mr. Jones teaches them by leading class discussions and continuously pointing students back toward the Bible. To help teach the students about the old testament he mostly uses the Bible but he also uses the ASCI workbook.

Mr. Jones said, "My goal is to help them see that the Old Testament is God's story of how he redeems and protects his people by faith."

"First and foremost, I want them to know and love God according to his Word. Second, I want them to get the major events of the Old Testament and be able to follow the flow of God's unfolding plan of redemption," Mr. Jones stated Psalm 1 says that we are blessed when we delight in God's Word and meditate on it day and night. When that happens, according to David, you will be like a tree, strong and fruitful. Mr. Jones says that sixth grade is an important year in the student's life, and he wants to help them grow into strong and fruitful young men and women, who have a passion for God's word and love him with all their heart, soul, and mind.

Donuts Are Sweeter With Dad

Written by Diana Points & Hannah Homeyer

On September 26th and 27th, hundreds of Legacy students and their dads (or grandfathers) excitedly came through the cafeteria doors of Legacy. They gathered before the school day began to share delicious donuts and some sweet time together.

Smiles and chatter filled the lunchroom as fathers and students enjoyed the wonderful treats.

“Donuts with Dad provides an opportunity for men to join their students on campus, walk the halls together, pray around the flagpole, and take part in their child’s education at Legacy. Students and dads alike benefit from this celebration of family time together on school grounds,” explained Kristie Pope-Dunn, Dean of Family Ministry.

When asked why she loves Donuts with Dad, first grader Hannah Moyer stated, “Because I get to spend time with my daddy, which I usually don’t get to do.”

Time is extremely valuable to all families. Some students want more time spent together as a family, and this event gave them a precious opportunity to do so. Donuts with Dad allows fathers and their kids to grow closer together while eating tasty treats.

“It allows us to spend time eating breakfast with the family outside of the home. So, it’s just such a good experience to see the classrooms in person and meet some of the teachers that I hear about a lot,” said Robert Yearwood, as he enjoyed a lovely September morning eating breakfast with his children.

Thank you to all the volunteers, dads, grandfathers, and students who attended this marvelous event. We hope to see you again next year!

See You At The Pole

Written by Madyson Conley

Parents, students, and teachers gathered around the Legacy flagpole early on the morning of September 27, 2017 to participate in the global event “See You at the Pole.” This annual gathering, now in its 28th year, brings students from across the entire world together for prayer and worship. They began in 1990 with only ten students and have since accumulated more than a million participants. Legacy school-goers were encouraged to pray for their families, friends, and communities. Events like this serve as great reminders that we are not alone in our faith and God is always with us. Not only is it a great opportunity to meet new friends, but it is also a wonderful experience to congregate in the Lord’s name.

Fifth grader Andi Evrard said, “I prayed to have a good day with my dad. I felt really really good after that. I am so excited for next years ‘See You at the Pole’ to be able to pray more with my dad.”

Senior Sarah Havemann said, “It is always a super fun way to start our mornings together in God.”

This great experience has influenced the students of Legacy to keep God in everything we do. “See You at the Pole” has certainly created a God-fearing atmosphere where Legacy can be better together!

Lower School Lions

Spotlight

Written by Jeana Francis

We are excited to have the WATCH D.O.G.S. (Dads Of Great Students) Program again on our Legacy campus this year. This is the second year that we have offered the program. WATCH D.O.G.S is a one-of-a-kind, school-based father involvement program that works to support education and safety. The goal of the program is to provide positive male role models for the students, demonstrating by their presence that education is important. It is also great to have an extra set of eyes and ears to enhance school security.

We have had a great start to our WATCH D.O.G.S program this year. So far we have had over 6 different dads participate in the program with many more to come over the next couple of months.

The dads that are on campus wear an official WATCH D.O.G.S. t-shirt so they are easily identified. The days that the students dads are WATCH D.O.G.S., they too can wear their “My Hero” t-shirt. WATCH D.O.G.S. commit an entire day to our campus. Their day typically consists of morning carline duty, monitoring the students as they dismiss to class, reading to classes, helping with Bible class, lunch/recess duty, assist teachers/staff members as needed, afternoon carline, and even some campus maintenance jobs.

We are always looking for opportunities to get dads more involved in school. So far, this program has proven to be very successful. Teachers, staff members and especially the students are super excited to have WATCH D.O.G.S. on campus! As you can see from the testimonies below, not only are the students and staff enjoying the experience, the dads are truly enjoying their time at Legacy.

“The Watch D.O.G.S. program has given me a rare opportunity to see my children in their school environment and to show them that I care enough about their academic progress to spend a day helping out at Legacy. I like seeing how they interact with their friends and getting a sense for what makes them tick when I am normally not around. What really gives me a smile is hearing how their friends thought it was “cool” that that I was there talking with them and even playing a little catch at recess time,” stated Chad Joy, Dad of Caleb & Piper Joey.

“The WATCH D.O.G.S. program was truly an enjoyable experience in so many ways! It gave me a different perspective of the school campus, a owed me the opportunity to meet the wonderful staff, and spend some quality time with my daughter in her learning environment. The WATCH D.O.G.S. program is a great way to get involved, give back to the school, and be a positive role model in the lives of many great students,” explained Ryan Gruy, Dad of Selah Grey.

Proverbs 22:6 tells us “Start children off on the way they should go, and even when they are old they will not turn from it.” What better way guide our children in the way they should go than to volunteer and spend a day with them at school.

THIS MONTH IN ATHLETICS:

The Lions wrapped up their volleyball season for HS and JH last week. Both JH teams finished 2nd in the end of the year tournament. The HS team continued to improve under their new coach and are excited about next year.

JH football finished the year on a strong note winning their last 2 games of the year. They beat Grace Prep 25-20 and Logos Prep 42-0. XC team competed at the State Meet today in Waco and finished their year strong as well.

Swimming got off to a good start last week at their first meet. Many of the swimmers set some personal records in their events.

HS football continued their winning ways with a victory over Bay Area Christian last Friday 34-7. They will travel to Lutheran North this Friday at 7 pm.

Cheering for the Lions

Written by Maddy Rimm

Legacy has had cheer for a long time now. I learned, interviewed, and even looked back at old times when I was a cheerleader to get some good information. Cheer is a great sport, although some people consider it not to be a sport. At Legacy it is! You can try out and compete until you graduate.

Freshman Laney Elguezabal has been a cheerleader since seventh grade. "What've I've learned in cheer is to have more self confidence, to be loud and bold." Laney stated.

"My favorite thing to do in cheer is stunting, since I am a flyer." Laney also stated.

A flyer in cheer is the person who is held up in the air by her bases. The bases hold her up and keep her steady while stunting and doing tricks. There are many other important parts of cheer and stunting, like a backspot. A back spot is the person in the back of the group who helps the bases keep her in the air. The backspot holds up the flyer and takes some weight off the bases hands.

The Varsity and Junior High cheerleaders cheer at the majority of the athletic games. Both groups cheer at basketball and football games. They perform stunts and cheers to get the football players ready to play.

Hopefully, we get to see some of these awesome girls at more games and more pep rallies. The Varsity cheerleaders are: Brook Foster, Grace Lewis, Anna Rosa Peterson, Madyson Conley, Hannah Condley, Taylor Bither, Allison Byrd, Laney Elguezabal, Anna Catherine Holcomb, Sarah Havemann, Ellie Holcomb, and Julia Lewis.

Cross Country: The Endurance of a Lion

Written by Harris Tucker

Rain or shine, the Legacy Cross Country team always showed up ready to compete. Over the course of a grueling two month season, the team of tenacious racers faced off against a multitude of schools in intense five kilometer races. Despite heavy competition, the Lions was prepared for the challenge and made their presence known at every meet. On their journey, the runners bonded with their coach and their fellow Lions through encouragement and friendly competition: all done with the end goal of improving themselves and improving one another.

“Cross Country is a hard, competitive sport,” Jr. Nick Teutsch declared when asked about the nature of his experiences running with the Lions. “But it is also a great team-based and fun sport.”

Various races took place around the district every week, usually on Saturdays. The season was capped off at Baylor University, where the Lions showed out in the TAPPS state competition.

“One of the best feelings is when you run your first race, but an even better feeling is when you run your personal best time in your final race,” eighth-grader Carter Hutton explained. “From the beginning to the end of the season, not one person on the team didn’t improve on their time. That’s why we did so well.”

Cross Country is one of many ways Legacy students can grow closer to God through physical fitness. Throughout our lives, it is inevitable that God will test us with challenges that may seem impossible. However, it is the individual possessing a steadfast heart and a sturdy mind that triumphs in His name, even when the odds are stacked against them. Cross Country pushes its participants to the limit both physically and mentally, inviting the urge to keel over and give in to the exertion, but it also teaches one to fight this urge and persevere, to keep running in spite of the pain, and to ultimately finish the race.

Cross Country develops endurance of the mind and body: values that all men and women of God require in order to carry out the declaration of Isaiah 6:8 - “Here am I! Send me!”

Friday Night Lights: Time to Tailgate

Written by Maddox Calicchia & Jacob Sutton

On Friday, September 29, 2017, the Black Out pep rally and football game tailgate happened to celebrate the kickoff of the football game between Legacy Prep and Pasadena First Baptist. It was a fun time with great food, entertainment, and friends!

At the pep rally, everything was pitch black. No one could see anything! Everyone received glow sticks so they could shine through the darkness. Logan Freevol, who is part of the drumline, was getting everyone excited, while cheerleaders were in the middle leading the dances. Towards the end, all the students went to the middle of the gym and everyone started dancing. Logan Freevol said, “The black out pep rally was really fun. I am looking forward to the Homecoming pep rally.” Everyone was ecstatic about the pep rally, but the afternoon was just getting started.

After that, everybody traveled home while the tailgate was being set up. Some very kind families stayed to help out and got spirit wear to set up the Roar Store! The Roar Store has a wide range of items, such as T-shirts, hats, lion stuffed animals, and other small things to show your spirit for Legacy.

When everybody started showing up at the tailgate, kids soon began to rush to bouncy houses, climb up an inflatable rock wall, make their way through an obstacle course, and throw bean bags at the bean bag toss game set up in front of the football field! Legacy Lions were also getting stuff from the Roar Store, getting their faces painted to show their spirit, and just hanging out with their friends on the playground. The adults were cooking food, checking the sound quality in Legacy’s brand new press box, and helping out with booster club duties to get ready for the big game. One group was making snow cones for everyone to enjoy as well. Everyone rushed to the snowcone stand!

“The rock climbing wall was really fun and the snow cones were great,” was one of the reactions from tailgater Serenity Stepanik.

Louis Green added, “The best part [of the tailgate] was the feeling of being there, everyone was happy and glad to see Legacy win!”

From the pep rally and its black-out theme, to the tailgating with all of its fun activities, the whole afternoon was an enjoyable time.

VARSITY Football: The Homecoming Game

Written by Dion Pinkard & Haydan Crowder
After coming off a tough district win against Legacy Christian Academy Warriors, the Lions looked to continue their winning streak against Logos Prep. The mindset for our Lions coming into this week, which was our homecoming game, was to dominate and show everyone else in our district that we mean business. The game was a stomp from the beginning as our Lions scored on their first drive and took back a pick-six the following drive. From then it was a landslide as it was 32-0 at halftime and our Legacy Lions went on to win 48-12. When asked about how they felt about this game, Senior quarterback Jared May replied with, "I felt very comfortable and confident. I knew throughout the week despite homecoming that our guys were going to be able to play their best. A lot of guys stepped up big time and guys returning from injuries played great."

Our Legacy Lions have a big district game coming up October 27 at 7pm against the Bay Area Christian Broncos. We asked Jared May on what his mindset for this game was going to be and he replied with, "Bay Area in my opinion is the sleeper team of the district. I'm going into next week as if we were playing the best team in the district. I encourage the rest of the team to do the same." Therefore, we wish our football team the best of luck this game.

FIRE UP THE LIONS!

Homecoming Pep Rally & Court

Written by Grace Lewis

Legacy's homecoming pep rally took place on October 19th at 7pm on Legacy's Holcomb Field. It definitely "fired up" the Legacy Lion football team for their game against Logos Prep the following night.

The pep rally was an exciting celebration for everyone who attended. It included an outstanding performance by Legacy's dance team, an introduction of all the football players and cheerleaders, an impressive show by the varsity and junior high cheerleaders, and even a few cheers from the Lil' Lionettes.

Following these festivities, homecoming court for 9th-11th graders was introduced. The winners were as followed:

the Homecoming King, Robbie Yanko, and Queen,

Roselyn Boeke, were announced. Once crowned, all of the homecoming court stepped off the field to allow the senior cheerleaders and football players to be recognized.

Jared May, a senior at Legacy, describes how he felt knowing it was his last homecoming experience. "I thought it was my best experience yet. The atmosphere changed positively and the new faces I got to engage with were so much fun. I felt very relaxed and I honestly enjoyed myself more at this event than any other event Legacy has had."

The night ended with the Legacy homecoming bonfire located directly next to Holcomb field.

Amber Wentz, a sophomore at Legacy, explained what her favorite part was. "My favorite part about the hoco pep rally was gathering in the stands with friends and family to support our Legacy Lions."

Overall, the homecoming pep rally definitely fired everyone up for homecoming!

Welcome to the Jungle

Written by Kaylee Hill & Mia Alcala

On October 21st, Legacy students, donning their semi-formal dresses and nicest suits, enjoyed a night in the jungle-themed homecoming dance. Many students started out the night at a restaurant with a group of friends and then headed to the dance for a night to remember.

Legacy's gym was beautifully decorated with jungle themed decorations and this set the mood for a fun and wild night.

Upon arrival, many girls quickly ditched their heels and hit the dance floor. Students danced the night away and took photos at the photo booth to savor all the memories of the night. Towards the end of the dance, Robby Yanko and Rosalyn Boeke shared a charming dance as Homecoming King and Queen.

Sophomore Reagan Mace said "I enjoyed Legacy's jungle decorations and I had a great night. I loved being with my friends and had fun with all the homecoming festivities. I love creating memories with my friends that will last forever."

A guest to the dance, Prince Michael said, "I had an exquisite time attending Legacy's dance and it was a great first experience for me. I was very welcomed and was definitely showed a good time that night."

Freshman Aidan Cronan was in charge of the music and helped keep the party alive. Students enjoyed dancing to all types of music and classic line dances. I think it is safe to say everyone's feet were sore by the end of the night.

This year's Legacy homecoming was one for the books. The night was full of memorable moments that will stick with people for years.

SPRIT WEEK

Written by Brooke Foster & Evin Calicchia

October 16th-20th was an exciting week of goofy outfits that fired up Legacy students for the homecoming pep rally, bonfire, football game, and dance. Each day, students were allowed to dress down according to the theme of that day. The week started out with “dress like a teacher” day on Monday and “hat day” on Tuesday. Then came “duo day” on Wednesday, “superhero day” on Thursday, and “green out day” on Friday. On “dress like a teacher day,” many students stuck with the basics and sported a Texas flag shirt or uniform to imitate Mr. Huckaby. “Hat day” was filled with sombreros, baseball caps, and fedoras. “Duo day” included famous partners such as Woody and Buzz, peanut butter and jelly, salt and pepper, ketchup and mustard, and many more inseparable duos! Madison Vaughn explained, “My favorite part was whenever I dressed up as guac with Caroline and Evin who were chips and salsa.”

Caroline Freeman stated, “My favorite day was duo day because I like dressing up with friends [and it] makes it more fun.” On “superhero day,” Superman, Iron Man, Supergirl, and a variety of other action characters were seen. Lastly, the week ended with a day full of green attire, intricate mums, and decorated senior overalls. All in all, this unique week brought spirit throughout the school and encouraged excited students to take part in the weekend’s homecoming festivities.

WINE A GOOD TIME

Written by Reagan Lagunas

On October 7th, Real Life Real Music held its annual wine and music festival at the breathtaking Bernhardt Winery in Plantersville, Texas. This music festival is always a fun family day, and this year proved to be the same. The day kicked off at 1 PM with beautiful weather and Legacy's own Caroline Freeman on the main stage. Caroline performed original songs and covers, and did an amazing job singing both. Later in the day, we entertained by another very talented Legacy student Avery Davis, who also performed original and cover songs.

In addition to amazing music all day long there was food, wine, and a lot of fellowship. Not only is the festival a great way to meet new people and be introduced to new music, but it is also a great way to give back. This year the festival profits went to help Hurricane Harvey victims.

Kyle Hutton, who runs the show, says this: "It was an amazing festival this year that ended with Tara and I dancing to one of our all-time favorites, Hal Ketchum. Thanks to our sponsors and everyone who attended. We will be donating $5,000 to Hurricane Harvey relief efforts!"

One of the main events that festival goers were treated to was a concert by another one of Legacy's family members, Kyle Hutton. The evening full of music ended with the astounding Hal Ketchum.

Angie Lagunas who volunteered at the festival says, "I look forward to this festival every year, the music is always great, the setting was beautiful. I have already done a lot of work with helping the hurricane victims so I was glad to see that the money being raised was going to help the people even more."

If you have never been to this festival, you should definitely plan on going next year.

Eye on the Prize: The Press Box

Written by Cameron Pineda

At the beginning of September, the athletic department, along with a few helpful donors, managed to purchase a press box from a school in Oklahoma for Legacy PCA's football field. The press box can be entered through the north end of the box through a door and can hold around twelve to seventeen people. The press box also features a fully functioning air conditioning system and an area at the top of the box for a film crew to view the games.

Many were very happy to have the press box, and could see it having great potential in the future. "I say it gives us the feeling of an official school and football field and that it helps the players focus when stats are announced"- said Mrs. Beeman.

After an interview with Coach Mac, it turns out a press box is completely necessary for a football program. Not only is a press box needed to run officials for the football scoreboard, but as previously mentioned, it also allows a film crew to film the games we play. The press box will be used at other events besides football games, such as prep rallies or any other special event.

Looks like the coaches made the right choice. Let's hope those camera men will keep their eyes on the prize.
